Cameron Muir: “I'm Cameron Muir and I'm a global graduate within the onshore renewables business in the sustainability and environment team. The main thing that attracted me to the graduate scheme is the opportunities that's given to you. So there's various placements and rotations throughout the whole program, which you can allow yourself to expand your knowledge and work with other people. The best project that I worked in so far is the recently decommissioned Hagshaw Hill wind farm project. We supported through environmental management and sustainability support through that project. It was the first decommissioned wind farm in Scotland, so it was great to really be part of that so early on in my career. The advice that I would give someone to applying for the graduate scheme, I would say certainly go ahead and go for it because there's lots of opportunities there and ScottishPower really provides that for someone who's starting out in the career”.
