

8 July 2024

The president of Iberdrola, official sponsor of the national team, visited the players at training in Las Rozas.

Galán encourages the women's national team to repeat the success of Australia and New Zealand in Paris.

- The players, who will leave for Nantes on Sunday 21 July, thanked Galán for the company's support and highlighted the electricity company's pioneering commitment to promoting equality through sport.
  - Iberdrola is the main promoter of women's sport in Spain. It already supports 35 national federations, which bring together more than 800,000 federated women.
-

The Chairman of Iberdrola, Ignacio Galán, today attended the training camp of the Spanish women's national team at the Ciudad del Fútbol Sostenible in Las Rozas, headquarters of the Royal Spanish Football Federation (RFEF), to convey to the players the unconditional support of the company and all its employees in view of their participation in the games being held in Paris .

Galán also expressed his confidence in the talent and ability of the players to achieve the triumph in this tournament and praised their victory in Australia and New Zealand , as well as their recent successes. Spain are drawn in group C , in which they will compete for a place in the quarter-finals with Japan, Nigeria and Brazil.

For their part, the players, who will leave for their training camp in the city of Nantes on Sunday 21 July, thanked the chairman of Iberdrola for the company's support and underlined the electricity company's pioneering commitment to promoting equality through sport.

It is not in vain that Iberdrola is, since 2016, the main promoter of women's sport in Spain. It already supports 35 national federations, which bring together more than 800,000 federated women, and promotes more than 160 competitions.